

I have been outfitting my '02 Wrangler for a number of years now but had held off on putting on a back tire rack because I couldn't find what I wanted. Most rigs I found were too expensive or built too cheap or both. And I wasn't cool buying online and sending someone a bunch of my money not knowing what I would get in the mail.

Then I heard of Carnage Off Road, an off-road auto repair and custom fabrication shop located right in my own town of Placerville, CA.

Not only did their team provide everything I asked for, but they went beyond the call, and provided features I hadn't even thought of, (like being able to refuel right off the vehicle.) Not only does Carnage Off Road provide top notch fabrication, they also provide certified Jeep automotive repair. I took my daughter's Cherokee in for a new clutch, and was just as impressed with their automotive service as their fabrication skills.

In addition to my tire rack, I also purchased sliders, and trailer modifications, which are of the same high quality.

Please shop these guys so we can keep them in business.
